My specialty is with sound-based therapies, the Voice-Ear-Brain Connection®, the cellular response to sound, and how all of this blends together within The Tree of Sound Enhancement Therapy®. For me to review spirituality and sound from my context, I look to cleanse the person from negative outside influences so that their person can receive, use, support, and maintain the give and take of sound vibration that the body utilizes every second of the day. We open ourselves to the possibilities that the world holds for us when we do not block these vibrations. Sound is the essence of our body. Our body rhythms and patterns shape us. Our voice reflects our inner soul and response to the world around us. The Voice-Ear-Brain Connection defines our ability to balance everyday life. With this balance, our “Being” evolves and exists. We can grow to new levels with the creativity that is possible when we are in balance. This can be enhanced with my sound-based therapies. This “Being” then allows for the interconnectedness of life, the earth, and the spiritual self. Sound and spirituality allow each person to achieve harmony in oneself and with the world, working together. Sound-based therapy helps return the person to natural balance so that they can find success and inner peace. Sound supports and enhances the unique person within while allowing them to explore and share in the energy around them.
