

The Spiritual Significance Of Music

CASSANDRA VIETEN

Transformations in consciousness, the kind that go way beyond simply rearranging the furniture of our psyches, and instead shifting the tectonic plates of our being, are stimulated and nurtured by dipping into the numinous realm. It is only through direct, subjective experience that we come upon the kind of noetic realizations that shift the way we view the world and our place in it. Music is a portal to these numinous realms. It is a gateway; a place where the veil between the material physical world and the ephemeral unseen one is very, very thin; and a channel through which the wisdom of the numinous realm can be transmitted. Music is a well into which we can easily and frequently dip, for balancing all of our doing with being. Creating music is a way to express what we find in the deepest shared realms of experience that often cannot be expressed in words.
