There is an undeniable quality in music that pushes straight past your conscious mind and deep into your spirit. It awakens your memories, your senses, and your emotions. I believe this is why God so frequently uses music to speak to us and to bring healing.

There are many instances in the Bible where God works through music. For example, back in the time of David, King Saul was tormented by evil spirits, but when David would play music for Saul, the demons would cease their torture. It is for this reason that I have devoted my life to music, and time and again, I have seen and felt God bring joy, release, hope, and spiritual healing.
