Nothing! Music is just a form of art, introspective and deep. It represents the soul of the person behind it. Music is the alpha and omega, the beginning and the end. Music, as the other "true" form of arts like literature and painting, originate from the strong necessity of a man; someone who needs to take out something from his heart or mind. Music is like a medicine. You need it to feel better. You cannot stay without it. Actually, I really don't know what is the spiritual significance of music, but I do know I can't live without it.
