

EMPTINESS

Music is a language. It is the most efficient way to communicate our personal feelings. I believe the power of words does have a limit, but with art you can explore the none concrete side of life that is unknown to most people. I am not interested in lyrics as I prefer to use the music of others to feed my personal visions. Every sound reminds me about the history of a world, this then wakes up thoughts from ancestors or animals. We do not have to dig very deep in this universe for a musician to touch the inner feelings of many people. The more personal you are with your art, the more power, importance, and interest it will gain from the few people that will understand you.
